

To be honest Lincoln and Poe were never (more) on radio, but you will be raven about their tribute at the 34th Friends of Old-time Radio Convention Oct 22-25, 2009 at the Holiday Inn, Newark, NJ

The 3rd Revised Ultimate History of Network

Radio Programming and Guide to All Circulating Shows

written by Jay Hickerson, October, 2005
Editor of Hello Again

540-page reference book listing over 6000 network, regional, local and syndicated radio programs. (Soft cover and spiral bound). This information was first presented in this combined format in 1992 with separate publications issued in 1986.

Traces each program by giving broadcast dates, sponsors, network and air time. Often a brief description with one or two cast members is given. The main purpose, however, is to trace each program by showing when it was on the air.

Includes theme music titles if known. Most complete source available.

Lists ALL shows available to collectors. Exact dates and sources are mentioned in most cases.

Includes All Information AS OF OCTOBER 1, 2009
including Supplements #1, 2, 3 and 4

Cost: $62 plus $5 postage and handling

REMINISCING

Old-time radio buffs have been honoring the radio stars of yesteryear annually since 1971, when our first old-time radio convention was held. The popularity of the conventions has grown steadily over the past 33 years. The first convention hosted 4 special guests. This year we are honoring over 30 actors, actresses, writers, producers, directors and technicians from the East and West Coasts who made the age of radio a truly golden era. What better way to pay tribute to all our guests than to meet them in person at this, our 31st annual convention of the FRIENDS OF OLD-TIME RADIO, and express the enjoyment their performances brought and still bring to us.

The FRIENDS OF OLD-TIME RADIO, Inc. is a group of fans and collectors who meet once a year for this nonprofit convention. All monies collected are used for hotel, transportation and other convention costs.

The Allen Rockford Award was established in 1979 following the death of Allen Rockford at the age of 35 on March 29. Allen was coeditor with Don Richardson of Nostalgia Radio News, an excellent monthly OTR publication. The publication started when Allen started his coverage of stations in central New York and Canada carrying Old-time radio. This led to Nostalgia Radio News. Allen was active in putting early radio on central New York stations and carried his own show called Sounds of Yesterday for several years on WRVO-FM in Oswego. He was an announcer and newscaster for WONO in Syracuse for many years. With Don Richardson, Allen also ran Double-R-Radio, a business specializing in tapes and recordings of old-time radio shows. Allen was an authority on early radio and constantly helped anyone who needed it.

BIOS OF NEW GUESTS BASED ON AVAILABLE INFORMATION

Prepared by Gary Yoggy

Alan Abel

Alan Abel (born 1930) is an American prankster, hoaxter, writer, mockumentary filmmaker, and jazz percussionist famous for several hoaxes that became media circuses. Abel graduated from the Ohio State University with a B.S. in Education. One of Abel's earliest pranks took place in the late 1950's. Abel posed as a golf pro who taught Westinghouse executives how to use ballet positions to improve their game.

Beginning May 27, 1959 with a story on the Today Show, the Society for Indecency to Naked Animals (SINA), was Abel's most elaborate hoax. They are best known today for their tagline: "A nude horse is a rude horse." As spokesman for the group, Buck Henry appeared on television and radio several times, including the CBS Evening News on August 21, 1962. The hoax began as a satire of media censorship but took on a life of its own with sympathizers offering unsolicited contributions (always returned), citizen summonses for walking naked dogs, and sewing patterns for pet clothes.

From 1966 to 1967 Abel wrote a weekly syndicated humor column "The Private World of Prof. Bunker C. Hill" that appeared in the San Francisco Examiner and several other newspapers.

Following the Watergate scandal, Abel hired an actor to pose as Deep Throat for a press conference in New York City before 150 reporters. Literary agent Scott Meredith offered $100,000 to buy the rights to his story. At the news conference the Deep Throat impostor quarreled with his purported wife, then fainted and was whisked away in a waiting ambulance.

Abel wrote, produced, and directed two mockumentaries - Is There Sex after Death? (1971) and The Faking of the President (1976).

Omar's School for Beggars was a fictional school for professional panhandlers. As Omar, Abel was invited to numerous television talk shows including Tomorrow Show hosted by Tom Snyder, as well as Morton Downey, Jr., Sally Jessy Raphael, Mike Douglas and Sonya Friedman, who was especially upset because Omar ate his lunch on camera. The hoax was a satirical commentary on the rise of unemployment and homelessness in America.

Abel was behind one of the most talked-about incidents in The Phil Donahue Show's history - on January 21, 1985, soon after the show's well-publicized move of its operations from Chicago to WNBC New York.

On that day's program, seven members of the audience appeared to faint during the broadcast, which was seen live in New York. Donahue feared the fainting was caused by both anxiety at being on television and an overheated studio on a morning that was cold and snowy outside. He eventually cleared the studio of audience members and then resumed the show. It turned out the fainting "spell" was cooked up by Abel in what he said was a protest against poor-quality television.

In 1993, when euthanasia and Jack Kevorkian were common topics in the news, Abel set up the bogus Florida company "Euthanasia Cruises, Ltd." which would offer cruises allowing suicidal participants to jump into the ocean after three days of partying. He revived this hoax in a column in 2006.

In 1997 Abel launched a new venture, CGS Productions, to promote gift-wrapped pint jars of Jenny McCarthy's urine. (A parody of McCarthy's role in a shoe commercial where she appeared sitting on a toilet.) The name of the communications director for CGS Productions was Stoidi Puekaw - "Wake up idiots" backwards.

Abel once ran for Congress on a platform that included paying congressmen based on commission; selling ambassadorships to the highest bidder; installing a lie detector in the White House and truth serum in the Senate drinking fountain; requiring all doctors to publish their medical school grade point average in the telephone book after their names and removing Wednesday to establish a 4-day workweek.

In 2004, his daughter Jenny Abel along with Jeff Hockett made a documentary film of Abel's life called Abel Raises Cain, which played at the Boston Independent Film Festival and the 2005 Slamdance Film Festival where it won first prize for Best Documentary. It has been released on DVD, and is also on Hulu.

Clay Cole

Clay Cole is a former host and disk jockey, best known for his eponymous television dance program, The Clay Cole Show, which aired in New York city on WNTA and WPIX-TV from 1959 to 1968. The Clay Cole Show was unique among early television rock 'n' roll studio dance shows; it was witty and stylish with a sophisticated New York point-of-view. It was Clay's youth (21), his dancing ability and his fully-integrated studio audience that set him apart.

Clay Cole was a New Year's baby, born January 1, 1938 in Youngstown, Ohio as Albert Rucker, Jr. He became a juvenile stage and radio actor, then in 1953, at age 15, became the television host/producer of his own Saturday night teen music show "Rucker's Rumpus Room" first on WKBN-TV, then, until 1957 on WFMJ. Arriving in Manhattan in 1957, he worked first as an NBC Page, then as a production assistant on the troubled quiz show Twenty-One, (events recreated in the 1994 film, Quiz Show, directed by Robert Redford).

In 1958, he continued his Saturday night television legacy, launching "Al Rucker and the Seven Teens" program on WJAR-TV, Providence, Rhode Island. In New York City in 1959, when asked to change his name, he chose Clay Cole, a distant cousin. Clay's 1960 all-star ten-day Christmas show at the Brooklyn Paramount Theater broke the all-time house box office record. Clay was among the few white performers invited to appear at Harlem's legendary Apollo Theater; he headlined three week-long revues, starring Fats Domino, Gladys Knight & the Pips and Chubby Checker. In 1961, he appeared as himself in the film Twist Around the Clock.

Following his departure from the Clay Cole Show, Clay became a television writer - producer, involved in the production of over 3500 broadcast television shows. He is twice winner of the Emmy Award (NATAS) as "producer of outstanding television programming" in 1981 and 1982 for the Joel Siegel Academy Awards special. He produced "The Discovery of Marilyn Monroe," "Play Bridge with Omar Sharif" and 365 "This Day in Hollywood" segments. Along with David Susskind and Raysa Bonow, he created and produced the first prime time entertainment magazine People for CBS in 1979. He returned briefly in 1974 as the star of the very first HBO-produced music special Clay Coles 20 Years of Rock and Roll, a two-hour event taped at Rockland Community College, and as cohost of the WABC-TV weekday program, AM New York. His final professional assignment was as writer/producer/director of the television special, the 2002 Sanremo Music Festival in Italy, featuring Britney Spears, Destiny's Child, Alicia Keys, Shakira, Kylie Minogue and others.

Tracey Dey

Tracey Dey was an American girl group pop singer of the early and mid-1960s. Born Nora Ferrari, and hailing from Yonkers, New York, she was attending college at Fordham University when producer Bob Crewe became aware of a demo tape she had recorded.

Crewe signed her to his production company, Genius Inc., and had her record "Jerry (I'm Your Sherry)", an "answer" to The Four Seasons' "Sherry," which Crewe had also produced. Released by The Four Seasons label. Vee Jay, the record reportedly received airplay on New York radio but did not become a national hit. The follow up, also on Vee Jay, was "Long Time, No See" but it failed to chart. Her breakthrough came at Liberty Records with "Teenage Cleopatra," a Beverly Ross (of Ronald and Ruby and co-writer of their hit, "Lollipop," best known as by The Chordettes) composition. The song was a timely cash-in on the press and fan interest surrounding the Elizabeth Taylor film, Cleopatra and became a national hit. The follow-up, "Here Comes The Boy" (co-written by Eddie Rambeau, Bud Rehak and Bob Crewe, the writers of Diane Renay's "Navy Blue" smash) also made the national charts.

Dey released nine solo singles between 1962 and 1966, none of which became major hits in her own time but which have since been hailed as some of the best of the girl group era. Many of her tunes were written by Crewe and Bob Gaudio, who was the keyboardist and main song writer for The Four Seasons. Her records were released on Vee Jay, Liberty, Amy, and Columbia. Dey also released two singles with Gary Knight, a Crewe song writing associate, as Dey and Knight.

The majority of the material has been rereleased on compact disc via a shared collection with Marcie Blaine but it is now out of print. Several tracks are available on various compilations: "I Won't Tell," can be found on the Rhino Records box set One Kiss Can Lead To Another: Girl Group Sounds, Lost & Found; "Long Time, No See," is included in the Castle Pulse box set, Chapel of Love and Other Girl Group Gems; "Teenage Cleopatra," is included on the Ace compilation, Where The Girls Are, Volume 5, "Jerry (I'm Your Sherry)," is on Ace compilation, The Answer To Everything: Girl Answer Songs of the 60's.

William Leon "Billy" Goldenberg

William Leon "Billy" Goldenberg (born February 10, 1936, Brooklyn New York City) is an American composer known for his work on Steven Spielberg's telefilms (in particular, Duel) and his seven-episode contribution toward the NBC Mystery Movie detective series Columbo. He was also the composer of the Michael Bennett - directed Broadway musical Ballroom and the television movie The Cracker Factory. In addition he wrote the trailer music for the Kojak TV series in the 1970s.

More recently, he toured with Beatrice Arthur as the accompanist in her one-woman show Just Between Friends.

Lillian Murphy

Lillian Murphy, lyric soprano, first garnered national acclaim when she was discovered by world famous American tenor, James Melton. While only eighteen years of age, Lillian was signing on Kansas City's NBC affiliate, WDAF. Mr. Melton and conductor Dr. Frank Black, who was also the Music Director of NBC, heard Lillian perform on her local radio show and quickly scheduled her to appear on their very next Harvest of Stars network Broadcast.

The response to Lillian Murphy's first guest appearance was so successful that the producers and sponsors continued to keep the popular young soprano on that program from it's New York City origination throughout the succeeding years. This opportunity rewarded Lillian with numerous personal appearances with James Melton as well as, guest star performances on the Chicago Theater of the Air.

Lillian continued to win critical praise for her solo recitals, guest appearances on television, symphony orchestra, opera, and with Broadway musicals. In addition to the aforementioned accomplishments, Lillian was the soloist at the famous Radio City Music Hall and won critical acclaim for her debut at the Berkshire Festival in the role of Marguerite in the opera Faust.

At age nineteen, Ms. Murphy's home town of Kansas city acknowledged this young talent by proclaiming a day in her honor. She also performed with great success in recital and as soloist with the Kansas City Symphony Orchestra.

Eugene Sampson Pitt

Eugene Sampson Pitt born November 6, 1937 in Brooklyn, New York, USA was the founding member of Jive Five. He first formed a group with some school friends in 1954 called the "Genies," in which he was the lead singer.

In 1959 he, together with Jerome Hanna, Richard Harris, Norman Johnson, and Billy Prophet, formed "The Jive Five." In 1985, Eugene and "The Jive Five" were introduced to New York cable TV branding consultants Fred Seibert and Alan Goodman by his latest producer, Ambient Sound's Marty Pekar. Together they embarked on an almost ten-year relationship, creating and signing the a capella signature sound of the American kids' television network Nickelodeon. Terry Stewart, President & CEO of the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame, has called Pitt "the most underrated soul singer in American."

Jay Stern

Jay Stern has been a director and producer in New York City since 1995. He has directed and produced over 20 theater productions, from classical theater to world premieres, and over 30 short films. He is also a founding member of Quicksilver Radio Theater, whose award-winning radio dramas have been syndicated internationally. Stern's first feature film "The Changeling," opened in NYC in May, 2007. Stern is a member of the Lincoln Center Directors Lab and is in preproduction on his next feature.

Barbara Watkins

For the past 30 years Barbara Watkins has been co-host-producer of Don't Touch That Dial, the longest continuing old-time radio show west of Chicago, adopting the name Barbara Sunday as her nom de radio. In 1983 Barbara was a cofounder of the radio drama group "30 Minutes to Curtain" which produced hundreds of new radio dramas, both live and prerecorded, for broadcast on KCSN biweekly, then monthly until 2001. She had served as actor, director, producer, writer and has been the Executive Producer for the past fifteen years. She enjoys performing a myriad of roles, and especially doubling, as her radio idol Virginia Gregg did so well. Barbara is also a long time member of two other groups who perform radio recreations on stage. Currently she is involved in an exciting project of dramatizing pulp fiction stories. Earl William Sauvain

When Sigmund Romberg's 1926 operetta The Desert Song was televised by Max Liebman in 1955, the cast included Nelson Eddy, Gale Sherwood, Metropolitan Opera star Salvatore Baccalone, the innovative choreographer Rod Alexander and his wife, dance Bambi Linn, and Broadway star Earl William as "Hassi."

Now a lively 79 years old, Earl William lives with his beloved wife, singer Lillian Murphy, in New Jersey. Of French-Swiss ancestors, he was born Earl William Sauvain. Someone persuaded him to anglicize his professional name, claiming that a French name just wouldn't do for a musical career!

As a young singer, three weeks out of the Navy, Earl landed a role in the original Annie Get Your Gun with Ethel Merman. When the show came to New York, he auditioned for a show opening "next door" and was hired to play the romantic lead, a part calling for high B-flats, in the revival of Victor Herbert's The Red Mill. Earl was still in his 20's, tall, good looking, operatically trained, and more than able to sing those high B-flats.

While performing in The Red Mill at night, Earl had a daily radio program. In the late 1940s, many of the New York radio stations had live music programs. So, between the Saturday afternoon and evening performances of The Red Mill, Earl took a cab to the radio station, sang, and raced back to the theater. He was not alone, for two men from The Red Mill orchestra also played at the radio station.

Earl's extensive credits include Make Mine Manhattan (with Sid Caesar, Bert Lahr, Bob Fosse, and Jack Albertson) and Alive and Kicking (with Carl Reiner and Jack Cassidy). Earl's wife, Lillian Murphy, launched her musical career at age 18 when Met opera singer James Melton signed her as a regular on his radio program. Subsequently, she appeared on "The Chicago Theater of the Air." She was in Music in the Air with an all star cast including Dennis King, Conrad Nagel, and Charles Winninger. The musical was financed by Billy Rose, produced by Reginald Hammerstein and directed by Oscar Hammerstein. The following season, Lillian was in the Gilbert and Sullivan Festival at the Broadway theater singing opposite her future husband, Earl William, in five operettas.

ESTATE SALE OF OLD-TIME RADIO COLLECTION

2400+ Reel-to-Reels & Audio Equipment

This collection is the product of 20+ years of my father's efforts and love of old-time radio programs. The collection is stored in a climate-controlled location in Northeastern NJ, about 30 minutes from the convention site. The collection includes the following:

- Almost 2400 reel-to-reel tapes (varying between 1200' and 1800' lengths).
- A catalog of the collection – my father kept meticulous records and many (though not all) of the shows are listed along with pertinent data such as air date and notable stars.
- Several pieces of audio equipment – cassette decks, reel-to-reel machines, etc.

An electronic copy of the collection's catalog is available on request. (The file is too large to email; I will send you a link to a file transfer site where you can download the .pdf document.)

All materials have been well-taken care of, but are sold on an as-is basis. Pickup and transportation of all materials are the responsibility of the buyer as this collection is too large to ship. The seller will expend every effort to help the buyer conveniently pick up this collection, including giving copies of the storage area keys to the buyer. Seller is also flexible as to the time needed by the buyer to arrange and execute the transport of this collection – would prefer buyer to take delivery of collection within a few months.

All reasonable offers considered - serious inquiries only, please. This collection will be sold only as a single lot.

Interested parties and those seeking more information can contact Christian by email at chrisinpm@aol.com or by phone at 201-421-6400.

Originally telecast live and in color on 5/7/55, The Desert Song was produced and directed by the fabled Max Liebman. Sadly, only the few folks with color television sets at the time have ever seen it in color. The kinescope, a system to preserve live broadcasts on film for re-airing, could only register in black and white.
